The rugged Ajo mountains, a few miles west of Fronteras and about 20 miles south of Douglas, are now the home of several bands of cattle and horse thieves, terming themselves patriots, but affiliated with no Mexican party, according to news reaching here. They have been rather active of late, so much so that Colonel A. Fraijo, commanding Agua Prieta, has sent out troop patrols to drive them from the mountains. —Prospector.

A very promising mining property is that of the Elephant group of six copper claims with mill and smelter sites, located one and one-half miles west of Patagonia, alongside the main wagon road. The vein has an easterly-westerly trend, is from 25 to 60 feet wide of iron oxide liberally impregnated with malachite assaying as high as 5 per cent copper and $10 in silver. Considerable ore was shipped from this property in 1902 by Wm. Powers and A. Stockton. —Patagonian.

Miss M. E. Leverich, one of the most prominent land attorneys of the southwest, will retire from a business she has conducted for 15 years. She was with the Arizona land office in Tucson and followed it to Phoenix, where she established the firm of M. E. Leverich & Co., which has handled 350,000 acres of scrip, as well as hundreds of regular filings. The interest of Miss Leverich in the business she established has been taken up by John H. Page, once territorial secretary of Arizona.

Arizona's revenue from automobile and other motor vehicle licenses for the year 1916 will be approximately $80,000 according to figures made public at the office of Secretary of State Sidney P. Osborn. Up to September 1, the states receipts from the sale of auto licenses, motorcycle license tags, etc., was $69,253.60. For July the revenue derived from this business was $2689 and for August $2306. At this rate it is estimated that the total receipts for the year will be near the $80,000 mark. —Copper Camp.

Dependants of national guardsmen who are employees of the Old Dominion Mining and Smelting company will receive financial assistance from the company while away in active service, according to a statement issued by General Manager P. P. Beckett. The amount of support the company will give will be determined by the number of dependants and the circumstances of each individual case. Employees whether single or married will be given their jobs again upon return from the border. —Globe Record.

Coyotes are becoming so nervy these days they come right into town to visit us. Tuesday night they made their way to the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Lindsay, who lives in the south suburbs of Snowflake, and purloined two chickens. The afternoon of the following day Mrs. Lindsay saw two coyotes in the close proximity of her residence. Early in the year several reported losses of young chickens from these animals. The rabbit crop and other varmints coyotes prey upon must be very short this year. —Snowflake Herald.

Carl Smith, one of the prosperous valley ranchmen, has contracted his cotton seed at $26 per ton, and will have about $4,500 worth at this figure. Two years ago, before the gin and oil mill facilities were brought to the very doors of the valley people, cotton seed sold at about $9 per ton. The price of seed to them this year will be the means of greatly enhancing the value of the cotton crop, and means the development of the industry to its fullest capacity. The crop of cotton in the valley this season proves that there is no better place in the United States in which to grow the product. —Yuma Sun.

Hundreds of ancient relics of intense archaeological interest have been recovered from the cliff dwellings of the Aztecs and Navajos in Nitsie and Segia canyons on the Navajo reservations by Prof. Malcolm Cummings of the state university, who has just returned after three months exploration. Baskets woven from the Yucca leaf, estimated to be at least 1,000 years old, and native cotton cloth and knit garments, with crude spindles are among the relics that are being added to the archaeological museum at the state university as a result of the expedition. Over 100 relics were brought to the surface by excavations conducted by Prof. Cummings and three students who accompanied him on the expeditions.

A carload of new machinery arrived in Patagonia this week to be used by the Supervisors in future road work. The shipment included scrapers, levelers, blacksmith tools, etc. Work on the Nogales Patagonia road from the Sorrells place is expected to start about the 1st. The first work on the road at this point will be changing the old road out of the canyon and moving it back on the mesa. Work will commence in both directions from this place, towards the river and towards Patagonia. As work progresses the road camp will be moved, the next camp will probably be at Bloxton, and then Patagonia. W. C. Travis will be in charge of the camps, as overseer for the county. —Patagonian.

GOV. HUNT WADES GILA RIVER.

"I understand that my opponent, Tom Campbell, has been creating quite a bit of dust about the state lately," said Governor Hunt, "but if the people of the state could have seen me Saturday night wading the Gila river at Florence, with the major portion of my clothes on my head, they would have been of the unanimous opinion that I was creating quite a ripple."

The governor was in his usual genial mood Monday afternoon, and referred to his unpleasant experience at Florence, with a smile of forbearance. He seemed to realize that it is not every day in the week that a governor of a sovereign state of the union can be seen wading around in a river, and although he did not express a desire to have a picture of the event taken, he thought that if his supporters could have witnessed the feat, they would have been convinced that he was big enough to raise the elevation of the Gila several inches.

Saturday night, the governor in company with M. P. Jordan of Gilbert, H. F. Russell of Glendale, C. R. Knutzen and M. T. Weyant left in the state car driven by Harry Shea, for Florence where the governor wished to inspect the bridge across the Gila. The approach to that structure has been washed out so many times that he wanted to see with his own eyes how conditions were.

That he found out the true state of conditions, the governor is ready to swear. The big state car plunged into the river the bridge being hors de combat and got about half way across. The engine stalled. There wasn't a team in sight and it was a question of waiting all night or getting out and wading. The governor set the example, stripped off what clothes he thought would get wet and plunged into the chilly water. The rest of the party followed him in undress uniform. When the other side of the river was reached the chilly breeze struck them much to their discomfort, but the prison car took them to the penitentiary where full dress was again the order of the day.

According to the governor he discovered the next morning that the river was not so big but that at night it looked two miles wide. —Republican.

The year 1916 promises to exceed all other years in the dairy exhibit at the Annual State Fair.

EXAMINATION FOR RANGERS.

Applicants Must Be Able of Body and Stand Endurance Test.

The civil service commission has announced that an examination for the position of Forest Ranger will be held on October 30 at all Forest Headquarters in New Mexico and Arizona. Persons desiring to take this examination may secure blank application forms 504 from the civil service commission, Washington, D. C., from Forest supervisors, or by addressing the District Forester, Albuquerque, New Mexico. These should be executed and forwarded to the office of the civil service commission, Washington D. C., as early as possible in order that applicants may receive admission cards prior to date of the examination.

The civil service register resulting from the examination in 1915 is exhausted for New Mexico and Arizona, and there will probably be a number of selections during the next year from the register resulting from this examination.

In order to qualify for the examination applicants must be able-bodied and capable of enduring hardships, must not be more than forty years of age and not less than twenty-one, and must be residents of the State in which they take the examination in order to be certified on that state register.

If an applicant passes the examination and is a resident of some other state his name will be placed on a supplemental list and there will be no chance for appointment until the state register has been exhausted or residence has been established.

A medical certificate is required. Persons seeking light out-of-door employment are not qualified for this work and should not apply. Candidates must be capable of performing manual labor in the construction of cabins, telephone lines and trails.

They must be possessed of at least a common school education and know the rudiments of surveying, estimating and scaling timber, and be familiar with the live stock industry and the essentials of the laws governing the public domain. A good fund of common sense, and practical experience in field work, are essentials. The examination is competitive.

Appointees receive the initial pay of $1100 per annum and are required to own and maintain the number of horses, ordinarily not less than two, necessary to carry on their work. They are furnished government forage in part and living quarters where circumstances require.

Pharao Turned 'em Loose; So Did President Wilson.

The following is an extract from a speech made to a bunch of Paris negroes by a local colored democrat at the depot Saturday night. He was sitting on a truck beneath the stars and delivered himself in this fashion:

"The Lawd said, 'Pharo, turn my people loose,' and when he didn't do it and the Lawd said again, 'Pharo, turn my people loose,' and when he didn't do it the Lawd tuk Pharo down to the Red Sea and chuck him in. That Mistah Wilson, he says, 'Karanz, set my niggers free,' and when he didn't do it that Mr. Wilson, he say again, 'Karanz, turn my niggers loose or I'll come in after 'em.' Still he don't do it and that Mistah Wilson he say, 'Karanz, turn my niggers loose—bring 'em right home yourself—or thar's goin' to be hell to pay.' An' de nex' day fo' million white men with the big dogs on flat ca's started for Mexico. You know what happened? Afore they got there old Karanz done turned them niggers loose and give 'em a palm beach suit of clo's an' a bottle of 'mule apiece, put 'em on a Pullman ca' and sent 'em home. An' on the way they met Mistah Wilson, an' he says, 'Boys, I wuz jus' comin' to git you ef it tuk every white man in the New United States t' do ut. No man kin lock my niggers up 'er pose on 'em an' not hear from me. Come on an' get some watermelon.' Ever hear of a republican doin' anything like dat? Naw you din't. That Mistah Wilson is shonuff white folks. Republicans aint got no use fo' a nigger 'cept on 'lection day.—From the Paris (Mo.) Mercury.

TWO EXCELLENT MEN.

When the State Central Committee selected Geo. J. Stoneman for chairman and T. T. Powers for secretary it acted wisely by providing an excellent working head for the committee, as on their shoulders will fall the heavy burden of the campaign. Mr. Stoneman is well known in every part of the state as an able, honest, fair man, of poise and dignity, who will not be influenced from any source. His efforts and desire will be to elect the ticket in its entirety, promote harmony and solidarity as well as enthusiasm among his co-workers of the State Central committee. Mr. Powers is an honest, able man, well versed in political affairs of the state. His service as chairman of the appropriation committee in the last house of representative, together with the knowledge he derived during work in the primary campaign, peculiarly fits him for the task. Besides he is a tireless, persistent worker, accurate and able to dig up campaign data so necessary in this campaign of education. —The Messenger.
